Airman wins trip to Las Vegas

By AIRMAN 1ST CLASS LUIS LOZA GUTIERREZ

EDITOR

Senior Airman Brandi Giles, a contract administrator with the 17th Contracting Squadron, won a trip to Las Vegas on a radio contest July 31.

"I'd been calling in for about a month and never got through," said Airman Giles, whose persistence paid off that morning, as she was on her way to work.

"I was using my cell phone's hands-free-set when I made the call into KIXY and gave the winning seat on the Fantasy Flight which was 24 I."

The Las Vegas trip was part of KIXY FM 94.7's Fantasy Flight to Las Vegas radio contest. The prize includes round-trip airplane tickets for two to Las Vegas, hotel accommodations for five days and four nights and $1,000.

"It didn't sink in until I'd picked up the tickets and had that check in my hand that this was really happening," said Airman Giles. "Talk about some serious luck," she added with excitement.

"I'm planning on going to celebrate

TRICARE and your child's oral health

By CAPT. RICARDO OCHINANG

17TH MEDICAL OPERATIONS SQUADRON

Losing one's teeth is not a normal process of aging. With that said, bright and healthy smiles should last a lifetime. In order to preserve these smiles, good oral hygiene must be maintained throughout life, and early prevention is the key to promoting proper dental care.

In an effort to support this promotion of oral health, the TRICARE Dental Program (TDP), managed by the United Concordia Inc., is encouraging early enrollment of children in the dental program and recommends dental examinations for infants by their first birthday. As a matter of fact, the American

Dental Association recommends cleaning your baby's mouth a few days shortly after birth. Children are automatically enrolled into the program at age four; however, Air Force Col. Gary C. Martin, director of Dental Care Division, TRICARE Management Activity, advocates the enrollment of children by age one to initiate good dental habits and prevention of tooth decay and gum disease. In other words, an active duty member enrolled in the family premium plan, which covers 2 or more dependents, may enroll their child earlier at no additional cost. Diagnostic and preventive services, excluding sealants, require no copay for children within this age group. Through these preventive measures, unnecessary and expensive dental procedures can be avoided in the future.

According to the Center for Disease Control and Prevention, dental decay is one of the most common chronic infectious diseases of childhood. Statistics show that 17 percent of U.S. children aged 2-4 years have had decay. By the age of 8, that percentage increases to 52 percent having experienced decay, and by age 17, dental decay affects 78 percent of children. If left untreated, tooth decay can result in severe pain, infection, and loss of teeth.

This is even more critical with children and the developing permanent dentition. Because a child is going to ultimately lose their baby teeth, one should not believe that these teeth do not require careful monitoring and maintenance. Premature loss of baby teeth can impair function and speech as well as cause spacing issues as the permanent teeth erupt.

So, what exactly is covered by the TDP? Diagnostic and preventive services such as exams, cleanings, and x-rays are covered at 100 percent of United Concordia's allowance. If these services are rendered by a United Concordia participating dentist, no out-of-pocket expenses will be incurred.

The TDP covers three exams; however, the program will only cover two exams from the same dental office within any consecutive 12-month peri-

SECAF/CSAF Letter to Airmen: Diversity and the US Air Force

Today's Air Force is composed of America's finest men and women. From all walks of life--rural farms, inner cities, and every place in-between--young Americans are drawn to the call of Integrity, Service and Excellence. We celebrate this diversity, recognizing that such a mix of experience leads to a breadth of perspective and broader horizons, and ultimately innovative new ways to maximize our combat capabilities for the Joint Team.

Harnessing such magnificent differences into an effective, coherent team takes solid leadership, quality training and a conscious effort toward mutual respect on all our parts. Tolerating harassment of any type is no different than committing the offense. As we become a leaner, more lethal force, we simply have no place for such criminal or divisive behavior.

We are all Airmen, and under enemy fire the race, religion, sex or geographic origin of the Airman fighting next to us is irrelevant. We expect you to exhibit a similar whole-hearted respect toward your fellow Airmen - your Wingmen - wherever you work today.

The United States' first national motto, "E pluribus unum," means "out of many, one." Initially, the motto referred to the formation of our great Nation from the thirteen colonies. It subsequently took on new meaning as people from all over the globe immigrated here, making the U.S. a multicultural "melting pot." Today, that phrase reminds us that we're in this fight together. Let's make sure the efforts and innovations of all Airmen are welcomed and appreciated. Your Nation demands no less.

The 315th Training Squadron - the only squadron here with both officer and enlisted students - also chooses one officer student.

The students of the month receive a certificate and a free steak lunch provided by the Rotary Club. Students of the month for July are:

my 21st birthday next June. The reservations are good for one year," said Airman Giles.

The winning Airman will not be making the trip to Las Vegas alone though. She will be accompanied by one of her fellow co-workers and friend, Mary Nichols, another 17 CONS contract administrator.

Airman Giles said she and Ms. Nichols had made a pact when they first started calling the radio station at the beginning of June. Both agreed that they would take each other on the trip if one of them won the prize.

od. Two cleanings are also covered within a 12-month period. In other words, if a cleaning was received on Aug. 11, 2006 and another on Feb. 5, 2007, the next eligible cleaning would be on Aug. 1, 2007.

One set of four bitewing x-rays is also covered during a consecutive 12-month period. In the event of a Permanent Change of Station (PCS), a second set may be approved if the previous x-rays are left with the dentist prior to PCSing.

In addition, two topical fluoride applications are covered by the TDP in a consecutive 12-month period. Fluoride helps to strengthen the outer enamel layer, making it less susceptible to developing cavities. Sealants on permanent molars, which help to prevent cavities from occurring on the biting surfaces, are covered at 80 percent through age 18.

To reiterate, early prevention is the key to long lasting smiles. With the upcoming school year just around the corner, this is an opportune time for your child to see a dentist. Catching any dental problems before school starts can prevent a child from missing class or from a parent missing time from work. With the support of the TRICARE Dental Program and their efforts to ensure maximum benefits for our active duty members and their dependents, everyone should take advantage of these preventive services covered by the TDP. For more information, contact TRICARE at 1-800-866-8499 or visit their website at www.TRICAREdentalprogram.com.

Hard at work at 75 years of age

Don Hedges cuts plywood Tuesday at the 17th Civil Engineer Squadron workshop.

BY AIRMAN 1ST CLASS STEPHEN MUSAL
STAFF WRITER

"When I was 20, I knew that 75 was old," says the gray-haired man in the uniform of a 17th Civil Engineer Squadron civilian. "When I was 30, 40, 50, I knew that 75 was old. So I'm an old man," he says, and then pauses. A grin crosses his face. "I don't feel 75." Whether he felt it or not, Don Hedges turned 75 on July 27. Despite his age, the one-time 17 CES Civilian of the Year still walks with the gait of a much younger man, and says he works as hard now as he did when he was an Airman himself many years ago. Mr. Hedges served in the Air Force from 1952 to 1962, during which, between his endeavors toward pilot training at Goodfellow, he served as an aircraft mechanic. He said he was glad to see Goodfellow finally display all four of "his" planes: the T-6 Texan, the T-28 Trojan, the F-4 Phantom and of course the B-25 Mitchell. Mr. Hedges said he worked on the T-6, T-28 and B-25 while he was in the Air Force, and worked on the F-4 as a civilian with McDonnell Douglas.

After leaving the Air Force as a staff sergeant, Mr. Hedges took a job with McDonnell Douglas in St. Louis, Mo. After 11 years of working as an engineer, and then two years farming around St. Louis, he decided he needed to come back to Texas.

Years later, he started part-time work at Goodfellow, which eventually became a full-time position with the 17 CES. Mr. Hedges said he has really enjoyed this job.

"I feel good," he said, dismissing with a wave of his hand the idea that he was getting old. "I know it's time to quit, but I haven't wanted to." Mr. Hedges said working for so long has helped him stay active. "My dad said the best way to kill time is to work it to death," he quipped, adding that he's never bored.

Despite his love for his job, however, Mr. Hedges said he's decided to retire next year on his 76th birthday. He and his wife, Anne, plan on moving to Wyoming, where Mr. Hedges was stationed during his Air Force career, to be closer to their daughter.

He said that people are always coming up to him, asking for his secret to staying so fit and active as he begins his 76th year. He urges them simply to stay active.

"I don't have a secret," he said. "I've been active all my life. I feel very fortunate to be so active."

Mr. Hedges may not have a secret for staying healthy physically, but he said he's learned one important thing about being healthy emotionally.

"I try and make people smile wherever I am," Mr. Hedges said. Making people laugh or smile gives him pleasure, he added, and breaks up what might otherwise be a monotonous day.

As Mr. Hedges heads toward retirement, when he plans to relax with his wife and continue his crafts, he said he's enjoyed life, the good times and the bad. He encourages people to do the same.

"Life is short, no matter how old you are," he said. "There's never enough time to do the things you want to do, or help the people you want to help."

AUDITIONS MON, AUG 14

The annual Missoula Children's Theatre is schedule for August 14 through 19. The story this year is, "Jungle Book". Youth from first grade and up are welcome to participate. If your child would like to learn about acting, make-up and more, this is a wonderful experience. The workshops will be held at the Community Center, bldg 127.

Workshops include:

- "What If?": This magic question allows elementary students to use their own creativity in a performance environment and encourages structure through imagination. (Grades 3-5)
- "Acting Up": This informative workshop delves into the basics of the acting craft. Various exercises are used to ease inhibitions while allowing the participants to develop a working strategy for approaching a role. (Grades 6-8)
- "Let's Make-up": Without the support of visual image, the most talented of actors can portray only a narrow spectrum of characters. Make-up is the foundation and the most basic visual image for all performers. This participatory workshop teaches students of all ages by demonstrating corrective, old age and fantasy make-up. (Grades 1-12)

Workshops will be half days and the other half will be spent rehearsing the play. The week builds with excitement as everyone prepares for the two performances. The first is Friday, August 18 at 7 p.m. and the second Saturday, August 19 at 2 p.m. Both performances are at the Base Theater and are free to the Goodfellow base population.

Auditions will be held August 14 at 9 a.m.. If you would like more information call 654-3247 or 654-4705.

Sneak Peaks and more at the Base Theater

BY AIRMAN 1ST CLASS LUIS LOZA GUTIERREZ

EDITOR

Goodfellow servicemembers and civilians were treated to a free movie Aug. 3 at the base theater.

More than 140 guests arrived at the base theater to watch a sneak preview of Warner Bros. Pictures comedy film feature "Beerfest", but instead were treated to a free showing of the movie "Click" starring actor-comedian Adam Sandler.

"Our intention was to show "Beerfest", but the carrier did not arrive on time. Therefore we allowed our guests to choose one of the three films we did have to watch in place of it," said Bill Tyler, Goodfellow base theater manager.

According to Mr. Tyler, the carrier has up to 5 minutes before the scheduled show time to deliver the film. The film can not be delivered earlier than the day of the scheduled preview in order to protect it from being pirated. This is part of an official agreement that the Army Air Force Exchange Service's Reel Time Theaters have with the Motion Pictures Association of America.

Although some guests were disappointed, over a hundred guests remained to watch "Click", and over two dozen of the moviegoers took home an 11 by 17 inch movie poster of "Beerfest".

"Sneak previews are done on a tentative basis. The purpose for sneak previews like the one that we intended to show this evening is to generate support for new movies to be released," said Mr. Tyler.

"It is also the filmmakers' way to say thanks to our servicemembers and their families at various installations around the world," he added.

Free movie sneak previews are not the only specials going on at the base theater.

The base theater also offers discounts to their guests on movies items sold at the concession stand. There are two separate punch cards, one for movie ticket purchases and another for combo meal. Both punch cards have nine holes to punch. Once a guest has acquired nine ticket purchases on his or her card, the guest can redeem the card for a free admission.

The combo meal card is used in the same way with the exception that it can only be used for purchases made for combo meals such as a medium popcorn and drink.

The base theater also offers collectible movie items for sale at various times in the year. This week, the base theater will be selling 100 "Pirates of the Caribbean: Dead Man's Chest" reusable plastic tubs. The tubs will be on sale on a first come, first serve basis. See Page 8 for details about the movies playing this week at the base theater.

By CAPT. PAUL SCHROTH AND MASTER SGT. DENNIS MCGORTY
17TH MEDICAL OPERATIONS SQUADRON

The Air Force is once again leveraging technology as a means of ensuring a medically ready fighting force. An important part of medical readiness is the Periodic Health Assessment, which every Airman must complete once a year. In the past this has involved a visit to the clinic and an interview with a medical technician. If any new health problems were identified during the interview, then an appointment would be scheduled with a health care provider. While critically important, this process has always been costly in terms of the man-hours required for both the medical technician and the Airman, especially since most interviews did not result in the need for a visit with a provider. Advances in technology are now allowing us to accomplish the same things, but without a visit to the clinic.

The interview, which began August 1, will be accomplished through a secure web site, which every Airman will be able to access from any computer with internet access - at work, at home, or even when deployed. Medical technicians at the clinic will review the web-based interview results; and if problems are identified which require medical attention, the technician will contact the Airman to schedule an appointment with a medical provider. This will also allow the clinic to more efficiently tailor their care to the specific needs of the Airman.

The process will begin when the individual receives an email from defenderack.com with the subject: "PHA Self Report Health Assessment". You will have 14 days to complete the assessment from the time you receives the email. After following a link which will be provided in this email, the individual will enter a secure website. After confirming some administrative information they will then be prompted to answer health questions, which are the same questions which were asked in the past by the med techs. When the individual completes the process you will be able to generate a report for themselves. A similar report will be generated by your health care team and placed in your medical record.

This is a very flexible website which will allow you to start and stop the questionnaire as many times as you need to. The whole process will take only 17 to 20 minutes. Upon reentering the site you will be able to pick up the questions where you left off, and will not have to start over. If you do not receive a return email or telephone call from the clinic then your PHA is over.

It is also important to note again that this is a secure website, and your personal medical information will be protected with the same level of security and privacy which the clinic now provides. Using this system the Air Force will continue to maintain its high state of medical readiness while saving the thousands of man-hours previously required for this process.

Children's Eye Health and Safety

Use the talking points as sound bites. These three sentences are the most important messages we have on the issue. Below each sentence are facts to support or clarify the point above.

1. To celebrate Children's Eye Health and Safety Month your Eye Care Professionals would like to offer these tips to help ensure their children enjoy good vision throughout life.

- ◆ Most children have healthy eyes; however, there are conditions that can threaten a child's good vision.
- ◆ The conditions that affect children include:
 - ◆ Amblyopia (lazy eye)
 - ◆ Strabismus (crossed eyes)
 - ◆ Ptosis (drooping of the eyelid)
 - ◆ Color deficiency (color blindness)
 - ◆ Refractive errors (nearsightedness, farsightedness and astigmatism)
- ◆ Because some vision problems are easy to miss, infants should have their first full eye exam at 6 months. Children should also have an exam at two years and five years of age.
- ◆ If there is a family history or your child appears to have a problem, speak to your eye care professional right away.

2. Eye injuries are one of the leading causes of vision loss in children.

- ◆ There are an estimated 42,000 sports-related eye injuries each year and the majority of them happen to children.
- ◆ You can protect your child's eyes from sports-related injuries by making sure he or she wears appropriate protective eyewear when playing sports. Check with your eye care professional for information on protective eyewear for your child's sport.
- ◆ Make sure toys and games are appropriate for your child's age and maturity level. A child's eyes can be severely injured by toys with sharp, protruding or projectile parts.

3. One of the best ways to ensure your child keeps his or her good vision throughout life is to set a good health example.

- ◆ Set a good example by always wearing protective eyewear when playing sports, working in the yard, using harsh chemicals or working on the car.
- ◆ Do not use or allow children to use fireworks. Take your family to a professional fireworks show.
- ◆ Set a good health example - have eye exams (and other health exams) at recommended intervals. It shows to your child that his or her body is worth taking care of and that preventive medicine is the best medicine.

The Devil Wears Prada

Today

Meryl Streep and Anne Hathaway star in this movie rated PG-13. In the dizzying world of New York fashion, where size zero is the new 2, six is the new 8, and a bad hair day can end a career, Runaway Magazine is the Holy Grail. Overseen with a finely manicured fist by Miranda Priestly--the most powerful woman in fashion--Runway is a fear-some gauntlet for anyone who wants to make it in the industry. A stint as Miranda's assistant could blast-open the doors for recent college graduate Andy Sachs. She is completely wrong for the job. But she has something the rest of them don't: she refuses to fail.

Pirates of the Caribbean:

Dead Man's Chest

Saturday at 7 p.m. and Sunday at 6 p.m.

Johnny Depp, Keira Knightley and Orlando Bloom star in this movie rated PG-13. Once again thrown into the world of the supernatural, Captain Jack Sparrow finds out that he owes a blood debt to the legendary Davey Jones, Captain of the ghostly Flying Dutchman. With time running out, Jack must find a way out of his debt or else be doomed to eternal damnation and servitude in the afterlife. And as if this weren't enough, the Captain's problems manage to wreck the wedding plans of a certain Will Turner and Elizabeth Swann, who are forced to join Jack on yet another misadventure.

Friendship Golf Par-tee

BY 2ND LT. JENNIFER LEE

PUBLIC AFFAIRS

Ninety-six players and approximately 20 volunteers helped make the Friendship Charity Golf Tourney a great success. On Aug. 4, participants gathered at the Quicksand Golf Course for 18 holes of fun, snacks, and a delicious complimentary catered lunch from Texas Roadhouse. Each player received a door prize and a goodie bag filled with coupons, golf balls and tee-shaped pretzels.

Although the tournament was competitive in spirit as the three best scoring teams received plaques, the overall atmosphere was laid back. One of the primary reasons behind the event was to facilitate even friendlier relations between the San Angelo community and Goodfellow members. Thus, teams were scrambled to have four players, two from each group, with handicaps of various levels. This event, which raised approximately $6,000, was a joint effort by the local chamber of commerce and Goodfellow; a majority of the proceeds to Project Warmheart, a program that assists military members and their families in times of need. Earnings are expected to support families of the 40-50 Airmen who are scheduled to deploy later this year, according to Senior Master Sgt. Mark Webster, event coordinator. Additional funds will go to support the upcoming Air Force Ball.

The competition was stiff and in the end, results were very close. In first place with a team score of 56 were Marge Elliot, 17th Mission Support Group; Darrell Elliot, 315th Training Squadron; Jack Myers; and John Burnett.

In second place with a 59, were Master Sgt. Randal Hunt, 17th Security Forces Squadron; Hank Oestreich; David Peters; and Karey Morelock, 17 MSG.

In third place with a 60 were Mike Lane; Jackie Allen, 17th Civil Engineer Squadron; Lt. Cmdr. Mac Diehl, Center for Information Domination Detachment; and Lt. Col. George Jones, 17th Medical Operations Squadron.

There were a variety of small competitions which offered more chances to win prizes. Hole 17 was monitored for a hole-in-one contest where a vehicle donated by Mike Mitchell was up for grabs.

Unfortunately, no one won the car. Hole 14 hosted a closest-to-the-pin contest; Craig Partusch won as his initial drive landed about a foot from the hole. There was also a longest drive contest for each gender; Master Sgt. Michael DeJacomio, 17th Mission Support Squadron, and Karey Morelock, 17 MSG, won in their respective categories.

The day recognized those who did well, and those who didn't. A prize was given to the last place team. What was it? Certificates for swing analysis.

Air Force adds SRP, CJR to virtual MPF

RANDOLPH AIR FORCE BASE, Texas - The Air Force will add the Selective Reenlistment and Career Job Reservation programs to the virtual Military Personnel Flight, furthering Personnel Services Delivery Transformation.

Beginning Sept 1, the automated SRP process will e-mail commanders a monthly roster notifying them of their Airmen projected for reenlistment. Commanders can choose whether or not to make Airmen ineligible for reenlistment based on quality force standards. Upon processing of the subsequent month roster, those Airmen who meet the requirements will automatically be made eligible for reenlistment.

Thirty days after the commander receives the SRP roster, provided Airmen remain eligible, the system will automatically request a CJR for Airmen in the first month of their CJR eligibility window (35th month for four-year enlistees, 59th month for six-year enlistees) in their control Air Force Specialty Code. Airmen eligible for a CJR who are in a constrained career field will be placed on the CJR waiting list. Those who are initially deemed ineligible for reenlistment will continue to be reviewed monthly to determine if they become eligible, at which time the system will request a CJR or place the member on the CJR waiting list.

Airmen in a constrained AFSC who end up on the CJR waiting list will be able to track the status of their CJR request via a vMPF link. The link will also provide a CJR expiration date for Airmen who receive a CJR.

"The automation of the CJR process means Airmen will be reviewed as soon as they become eligible," said Capt. Jay Johnson, chief of the future operations integration branch at the Air Force Personnel Center here.

"However, supervisors must still understand the program so they can convey to Airmen how the process works or where to go for additional assistance. As always, the professionals in the Air Force Contact Center will be standing by to assist if needed."

"This move will greatly improve the process for the majority of CJR applications across the Air Force," said Tech. Sgt. Catrina Baskin, noncommissioned officer in charge of Air Force Reenlistments. "However, Airmen will still need to request a CJR through their base military personnel flight if they desire one in their secondary AFSC or for other special circumstances, such as exceptions to policy."

Families with school-aged children are expected to shell out an average of $527 on back-to-school items, up from $444 a year earlier, according to a recently released National Retail Federation study. Because of the substantial annual investment, parents are often forced to wait for a "tax holiday" to fight the crowds of last minute shoppers in search of the best deals on clothes, office supplies, shoes and sporting goods.

Fortunately, authorized Army & Air Force Exchange Service (AAFES) customers enjoy centralized, tax-free shopping year round at the Goodfellow BX. In addition to competitively low prices that average more than 20 percent less than comparable retailers, the BX will match competitors' current, local price on any identical stock assortment. In addition to this same-day pledge, AAFES also offers a 30-day price guarantee on any item originally purchased from AAFES and subsequently sold at a lower price by AAFES, or another local competitor (excluding unauthorized dealers and warehouse clubs).

"All of the tools we employ to position the BX as a price leader are designed to reinforce that AAFES saves military families money everyday," said Main Store Manager Joan Strawderman. "The tax relief the military community enjoys 365-days a year is an inherent part of the exchange benefit troops have come to depend on."

Beyond the BX, Goodfellow parents and students can choose from an array of affordable, tax free items through the Exchange Online Store at www.aafes.com. Open 24 hours a day/seven days a week, this virtual exchange offers a variety of "back to school" basics such as Classroom School Uniforms by Cherokee, electronics and athletic gear.

Thousands of additional products discounted up to 15 percent are also just a click away at the new and improved Exchange Online Mall. Authorized customers need only to log on to www.aafes.com and go into the "Shop Your Online Mall" section to access more than 4,000 uniform fashions and accessories from French Toast, 100,000 pairs of comfort, walking, dress and casual footwear from Peltz Shoes, as well as a full selection of sports and fitness products from eSportsonline just to name a few. Just like the BX, there is a military discount and returns are always hassle-free when shopping the Online Mall stores.
